WIRELESS MESSAGES.

Nothing seems so at variance with the eternal fitness of things than a sway-backed horse.

Men may be great in war, and mighty in battle, but after all, the greatest of all men is he who maketh peace.

Correspondence schools are multiplying. Some day they will start a correspondence school for section hands.

Sunflowers have no particular value, but every time we go out into the country we feel glad that God made them.

Distance may lend enchantment to the view, but the disappointment occasioned by a closer inspection is the interest charged on the loan.

School will begin next Monday and at the same time a certain arbitrary government will be established and that without the consent of the governed.

The owl has a reputation as being wise, but in reality an owl doesn't know as much as a crow. There are men also who look wise but—comparisons are odious.

We know a preacher who is so consistent and logical, that should you drop into his church during the sermon you could tell from what text he is preaching.

We never complain about the hot weather in the summer, because we know that we will more thoroughly appreciate the fine weather that will come in the fall.

The man who cries, "Down with the boss,"

Let's lay him on the shelf!"

Is oftentimes the man who wants to be "the boss" himself.

Sometimes one makes a grave mistake by butting in. Sometimes he doesn't. It all depends upon the man and the circumstances. If we could all be assured of doing as well as President Roosevelt did, we would not be so timid about butting in.

A Falls City boy ran away and went fishing last Sunday and when he returned, his mother asked him where he had been. In a George Washington tone of voice he told the truth and she proceeded to preach unto him a sermon. She closed her remarks by saying, "It's a sin—a terrible sin, and besides, you didn't catch any fish."

Press Notes.

"Whenever they take the negroes off the farm and give me white men to work, then I quit and go out of the farming business," said a well-known Bluegrass farmer, who was in Louisville last night. "The nigger is the only farm hand, I would not work the Italians who are worked on the plantations in the south, for I would be afraid to go to sleep at night for fear one of them would cut my throat or stick a knife into me. The negro is the best farm hand you can find, and he just naturally takes to it. I had a negro once who acted as foreman on my place and I could go off during harvesting and the farm was really run better with him in charge than when I was there. He made the other negroes work harder than I did and got better results. They can say what they please about the negro, but with all his faults we need him on our farms and could not get along well without him.—Louisville Courier Journal.

A Hiawatha man came home late the other night and the next morning tried to make his wife believe he wore his necktie to bed just to tease her.—Robinson Index.

Word was received by the family in this city the last of the week that Dan O'Grady is seriously ill with inflammatory rheumatism in San Francisco, where he has been located for several years. His brother, Joseph O'Grady, left for that city Tuesday night to see him and, if possible, bring him home. Mrs. O'Grady accompanied Joe as far as Denver and will visit relatives there until his return.—Dawson Newsboy.

A Clay Center man had the end of his finger taken off in a washing machine. Served him right. He should have known better than to fool with such things.—Fairbury News.

Governor Hoch "feels that the prohibitory law is being enforced more closely than ever before." The governor shouldn't always judge by the way he feels.—Hiawatha World.

After going down under the sea in a torpedo boat, some of the newspapers think the next thing for the president to do is to go over the Niagara falls in a barrel. But they shouldn't dare him.—Fremont Tribune.

"A sad home coming was that of Mrs. Jerry Judd, wife of a prosperous farmer in Pawnee county, near Pawnee City. The old farm produced a wonderful corn crop this year and Mr. Judd selected the largest ear in his fields to show his wife who had been visiting her mother near Pawnee. As she returned home Mr. Judd came out on the porch with the great ear of corn on his shoulder. The porch broke down beneath the weight and the ear of corn fell across Mr. Judd's legs, breaking both of them above the knees.—Ex.

An Auburn man went into a drug store the other day and asked for something to kill the rats in his room. The druggist was puzzled as to whether he should furnish bromo for the man or strychnine for the rats.—Auburn Herald

Dr. Andrews killed a rattle snake near his front porch Monday. The snake had five rattles and a button, and was getting ready to spring at a cat when discovered.—Stella Press.

A monument was placed at the grave of Miss Maggie Reimers in the Stella cemetery this week. The monument was bought from August Neitzel of Falls City.—Stella Press.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale at Kerr's drug store.
